

Center for Development Management

EDWARD CHINGWERE, MSc.
Health Economist

EDWARD CHINGWERE, MSc.
Health Economist

Edward Chigwere is a very diligent and organized young economics professional. He holds an MSc degree in Economics Majoring in Econometrics and Health Economics obtained from the University of Malawi, Chancellor College through a Collaborative program with African Economics Research Consortium.

He is currently pursuing his second Master's degree in Economics and Finance for Development with the University of Bradford in UK an online course to graduate in October 2022. He also holds a BSc degree in Agricultural and Applied Economics with University of Malawi, Bunda College of Agriculture now named Lilongwe University of Agriculture and Natural Resources (LUANAR). His areas of expertise include applied research in areas of economics, agriculture and food security, health economics, climate change, education, gender and HIV and AIDS, grievance redress mechanism, social development, project management, strategic management, participatory rural appraisal techniques such as interviewing, visualization and group dynamics.

He has working experience in research and monitoring and evaluation after working for the position for 8 years with the Centre for Development Management (CDM) and Learning Facility Consulting Firm and he is currently also supporting NIRAS International on a project called Commercial Agriculture for Smallholders and Agribusiness (CASA) a five years project implemented with funding from Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office formerly known as DFID as a Country Project Monitoring and Evaluation, Data Quality Assurance Officer between October 2020 to March 2024. He has skills in data collection, data management including various computer software including Microsoft Excel, STATA, SPSS, Epi-Info, ODK, etc.